

Science as a vocation - academic career paths for statisticians

Dr. Johannes Schmidt-Hieber
(Universität Leiden)

March 27, 2017

Despite the various job opportunities in industry, many statistics graduates decide to follow an academic career. There are different paths to set up an own research agenda, to apply for research grants and to establish an effective network of international collaborations. The idea of the talk is to provide an overview and to give some advise. The talk is intended for master/PhD students and postdocs interesting in pursuing an academic career.